WHAT'S DOING IN OLD PERRY.

Wm. Gilliland, of Derby, Commits
Suicide—Lafe Elder
Recoverin' g.

DEATH OF MRS. GEORGE POLK.

Wm. Gilliland, of Derby, Ind., committed suicide at Tell City last Wednesday by cutting his throat from ear to ear with a pocket knife. The deed was committed Wednesday but Gilliland did not die until Thursday, the knife being too dull to make a very deep wound. The remains were taken to Derby on Thursday for burial. Gilliland was visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Doughty, of Tell City. He had been acting strangely all day and last night was affecting his brain. The deed was committed in an outbuilding. Gilliland owns a farm near Derby and leaves a wife and one child. He is thirty-two years of age.

Lafe Elder Will Live.

Lafe Elder, who was shot near Derby week before last, is much improved and will recover. Willie Elder, who is suspected of having fired the shot and is out on a $1,000 bond, will have his preliminary hearing before Judge Tate next Monday. It is understood that the Elders of Breckenridge county are much wrought up over the shooting.

Death of Mrs. Geo. Polk.

The remains of Mrs. Geo. Polk, of Tell City, who died last Monday morning of last week of cancer of the stomach, were buried there Wednesday. The funeral was presided by Rev. J. F. Winchell, of the Baptist church, of which the deceased was a member. People from both Perry and Breckenridge counties attended the funeral. Mrs. Polk had been ill for some time. She leaves a husband and several children. She is also survived by several brothers and sisters, who reside in Breckenridge county. She was formerly a Mrs. Crow and her maiden name was Lynch.

Incendiarists Still at Large.

The person or persons who fired Wm. Sandarth's barn, in Tell City, are still at large. It is still talked that the reward of $100 for their apprehension should be increased, so that experienced detectives will take up the matter and rid the community of the nuisance. It is said that there is $300 in the treasury of the Perry County Protective Farmers' insurance company set aside for this purpose.

Of Value and Interest.

Every farmer in Perry and Breckenridge counties should feel it his duty to attend the Perry County Farmers' Institute, which will meet at the high school building in Tell City, Ind., next Friday and Saturday. The program published in last week's News contained a list of subjects of value and interest to the farmer that will be discussed, and the good people of Tell City will see that every one who attends will enjoy himself. Every farmer who possibly can, should attend.

To My Patrons.

I will be away several months taking a special course in surgery. Any one wishing to make payments on their account will please settle with Short & Haynes, who have my books. My address will be 3708 Dayton St., St. Louis, Mo., care St. Louis College of Physicians and Surgeons. Write me if I can be of any service to you. Respectfully
F. L. Lightfoot.

Rumors From Hardinsburg

Hardinsburg, Ky., Dec. 1.—Special.—Dr. Milton Board, Jr., was in Frankfort last week. It is rumored that he will be appointed by the Governor to a good position, the first of the year. It is said that Gen. David R. Murray has handed the Governor his resignation to take effect Dec. 9, and that he will remove to this place, where he will resume the practice of law.

BAPTISTS ARE RE-ORGANIZED.

The Breckenridge Association of Baptists Name of the New Association.

WILL MEET FIRST AT GOSHEN.

Delegates from the Baptist churches of Breckenridge county met in convention at the Clover creek church last Friday and Saturday for the purpose of organizing a new association. The following churches, with their letters from the Goshen and Salem associations, represented: Clover Creek, Goshen, Harboursburg, Hite's Run, Corinth, Garfield, Friendship, Irvington, Lost Run, New Bethel, Stephensport, Walnut Grove and Cloverport.

At the morning session on Friday Rev. H. B. White, of Goshen association, was called to the chair as moderator and Rev. John F. Winchell, of Perry county (Ind.), association, was elected clerk. Rev. Everett English was then called on by the moderator and he led earnestly in prayer, asking for the presence and guidance of the Lord in the deliberations of the meeting.

After the invocation, the temporary officers were made permanent. Letters from all the aforesaid churches were read, and, on motion, all delegates present from other associations were invited to sit in council with the twelve churches.

Suitable articles of faith and a constitution to govern the new association were adopted, and all other business leading up to the organization of the association was taken up and completed. Then all present were invited on the outside of the church, where the ladies had prepared an excellent dinner for them.

Friday afternoon the association was called to order by Rev. White, who announced the body present for the election of moderator and clerk. Several brethren were put in nomination for each office and votes of the messengers were cast with tellers appointed to receive them. Rev. W. V. Harrel, of Harboursburg, was elected moderator and C. M. Payne, of Harrel, was elected clerk. Both then came forward and assumed their respective duties, and business of the new association was proceeded with. The place named for the next meeting was Goshen church at Goshen. The name given the new Association was the Breckenridge association of Baptists. After appointing committees and attending to some other business the association adjourned to meet at 10 o'clock Saturday to complete their work.

The meeting Saturday was not as important as that Friday, only business of a minor nature being before the association.

Largest Transcript Completed.

Hardinsburg, Ky., Dec. 1.—Special.—Circuit Clerk Wm. S. Ball has just completed the transcript in the case of L. Green vs. Dr. J. H. Hart, which has been appealed by Col. Green. It is by far the largest transcript ever made out from the Breckenridge circuit court. It consists of 450 pages of typewritten matter of more than 200,000 words. Attorney James H. Wootton, of counsel for the plaintiff, was liberal in his praise of Mr. Ball's work, especially as regards its neatness and accuracy.

Applicant For Commissioner

Hardinsburg, Ky., Dec. 1.—(Special.)—Mr. R. S. Skillman is an applicant for the position of Master Commissioner of the Breckenridge circuit court. The appointment is to be made at the next February term of court and the power of appointment resides with the circuit judge, Wood S. Cheif.

Will Go to Housekeeping.

Mrs. Jessie Ekridge, who has been visiting her father and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Ekridge, of Harboursburg, has returned to her home in Owensboro. Mr. and Mrs. Ekridge will go to housekeeping and will occupy flats on 5th street, near Fredrick.

HIS PERSONAL ACCOUNT.

Not long ago a man high in finance and conspicuous before the country lost his reputation, was uncovered as a blackmailer and bunco-steerer on a large scale who was trafficking upon his good name. On every side one heard the remark: "Yes, his lost reputation. But what does he care? I haven't got money by the barrel full? Not a door will be closed against him; not an acquaintance will be less friendly."

There is much truth in this—much surface truth. But get below the surface, study the elements that make up the substance of reputation and of character, and what seemed so mournfully true seems utterly false. The principles of morality are the principles of sound policy, too, as the human race has learned through the ages. These accounts in "consequences" are not made up in a moment or in the public highway. But they are made up. And all realize this solemn truth who do not fancy they know a man's life through and through because they see him in public now and then, or read his public acts. A man has other and better ways of meeting out justice than such conditions as taking away a man's money—leaving it to him may be far more effectual. Nor does destiny deal with individuals for the purpose of making a gallery play. It does not care for applause or for condemnation. Silently and privately it deals with each man. And it is not often cheated.—Saturday Evening Post.

KENTUCKIANS IN CONGRESS.

Washington, Nov. 25.—Speaker Cannon has virtually decided where to place the members of the Kentucky delegation in the matter of committee assignments. According to information obtained the Bluegrass Representatives will be assigned as follows:

Ollie M. James, First district, Committee on Elections. Augustus O. Stanley, Second district, Mines and Mining. John S. Rheu, Third district, Banking and Currency. Probably David H. Smith, Fourth district, Judiciary. Swagor Sherley, Fifth district, Revision of the Laws. Daniel L. Gooch, Sixth district, District of Columbia. South Trimble, Seventh district, Claims. George G. Gilbert, Eighth district, Private Land Claims and Labor.

J. N. Kehoe, Ninth district, Foreign Affairs. Frank A. Hopkins, Tenth district, Invalid Pensions. The friends of Representative Sherley, the Louisville member, had hoped he would get on the Rivers and Harbors Committee, but the fact that he was a new member alone militated against him. As a member of the Committee on Elections, Ollie James will be able to sit in judgment on the election case which will come up from the Eleventh Kentucky district. Representative Kehoe has landed one very desirable committee, Foreign Affairs. When Senator McCrory was in the House the last time he was chairman of that committee.

THE THUNDERBIRD ON TRUSTS.

The Hon. John Wesley Gaines, the Tennessee Thunderbird, is pouncing on the Octopus again. He has introduced into the House of Representatives a bill excluding from the use of mail for any purpose of their business any firm, association, corporation or persons "associated or combined for any, either or all" of certain nefarious objects enumerated in the bill.

First, "to abolish, abridge, or in any wise affect open and free competition in trade or exclude rivalry between the parties thereto," etc. Thus, if two storekeepers in Christian county, Tenn., go into partnership, the rural delivery carrier can't take their mail, at least until he has read it.

Second, "to create or promote any restrictions in trade or commerce, or to limit or restrict production of any article or commodity of trade unduly to affect the market." What becomes of the associations of cotton planters and farmers, who are trying to combine for the restriction of production?

Third, "to affect the wages of employees of themselves or others," etc. What becomes of the labor unions?

Fourth, "to diminish the product of labor and skill in order to increase the price thereof." Once more, what becomes of the labor unions?

Fifth, "to create monopoly or do that which tends thereto." Had for an inventor who gets capitalists to back his patent.

But we have followed far enough in the tracks of the Thunderbird. The penalty for violation of this entertaining act is a fine of not less than $5,000 and imprisonment for not less than a year. Grand juries are to have "inquisitorial powers to inquire into violations of this act." It will be much better to give the carrier and postmaster power to read all letters that come into their hands.

The cynical may suspect that the Hon. John Wesley Gaines is a humorist, who seeks to reduce trust-busting to the absurd. The cynical are wrong. The Hon. John Wesley Gaines is as solemn as a Thunderbird ought to be.—New York Sun.

ber, glanced up. His gaze rested on her for a moment and then returned in cold contemplation to the fire seat before him.

Yet was she worthy of more than a passing scrutiny? The gleam of the lamp fell upon her well-turned face, and the gliding of her eyes could be seen in the shadow that rested on her brow beneath the crown of hair. She wore a dark, lustrous dress, striped with silk, a small "surplice" of the style of the day, the sleeves finished with lace and the skirt full and flowing. Her heavy brown tresses were arranged in a coiffure in the fashion then prevailing, a portion of the hair falling in curls on the neck, the remainder brushed forward in plaits and fastened at the top of the forehead with a simple pearl ornament.

If the young girl felt any interest in the presence of the taciturn guest she concealed it, secretly looking at him and joining but rarely in the conversation. Susan, on the other hand, resorted to sundry coquetries.

"I fear, sir, that you find our poor company intrusive, since we have forced you to become one of us?" she said, smiling with her fork and thereby displaying a white row of teeth.

The impassive blue eyes met her sparkling ones.

"I am honored in being admitted to your fellowship," he returned perfunctorily.

Here the dark-haired girl arose, the dinner being concluded. There was none of the formal, ceremonious manner as the manager, leaning back in his chair and taking her hand, said:

"You are going to retire, my dear? That is right. We have had a hard day's traveling."

She bent her head and her lips pressed softly the old man's cheek, after which she turned from the rest of the company with a graceful bow.

As she passed through the doorway her flowing gown caught upon a nail in the wall, precipitating though he seemed, her low exclamation did not escape the ear of the soldier, and, quitting his place, he knelt at her feet, and she, with half-turned head and figure gracefully poised, looked down upon him.

With awkward fingers he released the dress, and she bowed her acknowledgments, which he returned with formal deference. Then she passed on, and he raised his head, his gaze following her through the dark looking hall, up the broad, ill-lighted staircase, into the mysterious shadows which prevailed above.

Shortly afterward the third company dispersed and the soldier sought his room.

CHAPTER II.

THE crowing of the cock awakened the French traveler, and, going to the window, he saw that daylight had begun to show its first shafts upon the unromantic burgard scene, while in the east above the billows spread the early flush of morning.

Descending the stairs and making his way to the barn, he called to Bunty, the stable boy, who was performing his ablutions by pouring water over his face through a shock of red hair, to saddle his horse. The sleepy lad led forth a large but shapely animal, and soon Saint-Prospier was galloping around the country. After a brisk pace for some miles he reined in his horse and, leisurely rising in a crenel, returned on the road that crossed the farming country back of the tavern.

The rider was rapidly approaching the inn when a sudden turn in the highway as the road crossed around a bend brought him to a standstill. He saw a young woman who was walking slowly in the same direction. So fast was the pace of his horse and so unexpected the meeting she was almost under the trampling feet before he saw her.

Taken by surprise, she stood as if transfixed, with her arms outstretched, her eyes wide open, her face pale as death. He saw her, and she saw him, and they stood thus for a moment, each looking at the other with a gaze that seemed to pierce the soul. The young man's face was pale as death, and his eyes were wide open. The young woman's face was pale as death, and her eyes were wide open. They stood thus for a moment, each looking at the other with a gaze that seemed to pierce the soul.

With quivering nostrils the animal appeared possessed of unquenchable spirit, but his master, bearing a less assured as he approached, with an expression of mingled anxiety and concern on his face, the young girl who the manager had addressed as Constance.

"If your pardon for having alarmed you," he said. "It was careless, excusable."

"It was a little startling," she admitted, with a faint smile.

"Only a little," he broke in gravely. "If I had not seen you just when I did—"

"You would not have turned your nose—at such a time to someone as added.

"I wish not to myself. From what?"

From the window of her room Susan saw Saint-Prospier and Constance returning and looked surprised as well as a bit annoyed. Truth to tell, Mistress Susan, with her capacity for admiring and being admired, had conceived a temporary interest in the soldier, a fancy as light as it was ephemeral. That touch of melancholy when his face was in repose inspired her with a desire for investigation in this past mistress of emotional analysis. But the arrival of the coach which had passed the couple soon diverted Susan's thoughts to a new channel.

The equipage drew up and a young man, dressed in a style novel in that locality, sprang out. He wore a silk hat with severely up-turned brims, trousers extremely wide at the ankle, a waistcoat of the dimensions of 1745 and large watch ribbons sustaining ponderous bunches of keys.

The gallant touched the narrow brim of his hat to Kate, who was peeping from one window, and waved a hand to Susan, who was curiously gazing from another, whereupon, being detected, drew back hastily.

Overwhelmed by the appearance of a guest of such manifest distinction, the landlord bowed obsequiously as the other entered the tavern with a supercilious nod.

To Mistress Susan this incident was exciting while it lasted, but when the dandy had disappeared her attention was again attracted to Constance and Saint-Prospier, who slowly approached.

He passed with his horse before the front door, and she saw a moment near the little porch, on either side of which grew sweet williams, four o'clocks and hellebores. But the few conventional words were scarcely enough for the fair eavesdropper above, the young girl soon entering the house and the soldier leading his horse in the direction of the stable.

As the latter disappeared around the corner of the tavern Susan left the window and turned to the mirror.

"Liar," she said, holding a mass of blood hair in one hand and deftly coiled it upon her little head. "I believe she got up early to meet him."

In the taproom the soldier encountered the newcomer, seated not far from the fire, as though his blood flowed sluggishly after his long ride in the chill morning air. Well built, although somewhat slender of figure, this little arrival had a complexion of tawny brown, a living nose, as warm and glowing as the most vivid of Vandike pigments.

He raised his eyes slowly as the soldier entered and surveyed him deliberately. From a scrutiny of mere physical attributes he passed on to the more important details of clothes, noting that his work coat was properly loose at the waist and that the buttons were suitably large to give motion, but also detecting that the trousers lacked breadth at the ankles and that the hat had a high crown and a broad brim from which he complacently concluded the figure was somewhat behind the shifting changes of fashion.

"Curious if this be a leasly brat," he exclaimed, stretching himself still more, yawning and passing a hand through his black hair. "Hug them, they might as well stand up and grin in the smokehouse with the barons and hums! I feel as cured as a side of pig ready to be hung to a dirty rafter."

With which he pulled himself together, went to the window, raised it and placed a stick under the frame.

The citizens of Lexington, Ky. want
the state fair held there next year.
Perhaps before acting hastily they had better interview some parties at do less, and live longer here than any other place in the Union.

Disputes here from Washington say that considerable stealing has been going on in the Post office department at Washington. This department belong under the control of the Republican party, represented by President Roosevelt, they will be called upon to clear the matter up in the next national campaign.

As the Christmas holidays approach
the Cloverport merchants begin to arrange their wares for inspection of the trade and they are doing it with an eye to the beautiful. Always and particularly during the holidays, Clover-port is ready to show a big line of goods in this way, both useful and ornamental.

What Ople Read Has to Say About Osteopathy.

Man constantly finds something new about himself, and it is thus that the world moves. From the days of Adam he has been his own study, and is ever yet a mine of mystery unto himself.

We reverence the old, and yet we know that the school boy of to-day is wiser than the sage of long ago.

Science becomes science, science resolves itself into a common-sense fact, and we wonder that we were so slow to accept so manifest a truth.

Good health is natural. Nature's aim is to be free from disease. To die before extreme old age is most unnatural. There is something wrong with the running of a machine that wears out too soon; an observant machinist can often repair the evil. Man is a machine and recently there has come into notice a school of medical men
unwilling to regulate the machine man —Osteopathy. Most cheerfully do I subscribe to this new science. I have felt the benefit of it and I do honestly believe it to be one of the most wonderful discoveries of any age.

My attention was first called to Osteopathy by a friend whose wife had been cured of insanity. Closely following I knew of a prominent man who had been cured of paralysis.

Shortly afterward while I was sickened with the grip, I sent for an Osteopath and with one treatment he cured me. I took treatment at another time after that and underwent a complete physical regeneration. It has weathered me through attacks of cold and various acute ills. I know that Osteopathy is a treatment once or twice a year fits me for work and nothing else could and it increases
my capacity for labor.

I find that some of the greatest physicians have endorsed this wonderful departure in the treatment of diseases, some of them enthusiastically. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, dear to American letters, a graduate of Harvard and, although few know it, a medical man of renown, the professor of anatomy and physiology at Harvard for many years, once declared that if all the medicine on earth were dumped into the sea it would be a good thing for man kind, but a mighty bad thing for the fish. He knew, too.

The Osteopath with infinite labor adjusts the bones, relaxes undue tension on the part of the ligament; normalizes and puts the minute muscles

into their track; reduces false pressure;
stimulates and relaxes or denervates
the network of nerves that control
the functions of every organ of the body. He frees the life forces, and corrects. Nerve centers are manipulated by delicate, manual pressures
so that by stimulating or denervating
he controls the heart's action.
The Osteopath can regulate the action of the stomach, bowel, liver, kidneys, pancreas and other organs.
By a pressure on the vaso-motor center, which controls the caliber of the arteries, he reduces the temperature of fevers several degrees in as many minutes. Medicine points with pride to the ingenuity and bewildering complexity of its theories. "Osteopathy asks the public to look at results."

ATTENTION, KENTUCKIANS!

Special Train For Davenport, Lincoln
County, Oklahoma,
Dec. 13th.

The town, while only six weeks old,
has shown possibilities of a great future.
Its population has steadily grown from the opening day. With the finest climate, a splendid agricultural country,
the best water and nothing to hinder,
this will soon be among the leading towns of the great Southwest. A great variety of crops cannot be produced in any part of America. It has the advantage of the greatest railroad facilities, being at the crossing of the Frisco and Santa Fe. All products find a market at the highest prices in this place,
being shipped to such centers as St.
Louis and Kansas City.

Now is the time to take advantage of the following liberal offer. Parties having as much as Three Hundred Dollars worth of property in Davenport, for cash, will be furnished a free round-trip ticket to Davenport. Town lots and farms can be had at the most reasonable prices.

For further information, call on or address T. C. Kentucky Oklahoma and Townsite Co., Lexington, Ky., or Davenport, Oklahoma.

Hand Badly Crushed

Irvington, Ky., Dec. 1.—(Special.)
—Flames Claycomb, one of the most energetic young men of the neighborhood, was the victim of an accident on Friday evening while at work with a corn shredder. In some unknown way his left hand was caught in the machinery and before he could extricate himself his hand was crushed into a shapeless mass. Mrs. Moorman and Foote attempted the limb just above the elbow. Fortunately for Mr. Claycomb he is a member of the Highland Nodules and they will help him in their way.

Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the lungs will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself.
Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer.
Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better; you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air,
rest all you can, eat all you can,
that's the treatment and
that's the best treatment.

Nasal CATARRH

In all its stages.
Ely's Cream Balm
cleanses, soothes and heals
the diseased membrane.
It cures catarrh and drives away a cold in the head
quickly.
Cream Balm is placed into the nostrils, spreads
over the membrane and is absorbed. Relief is immediate and a cure follows. It is not drying—does not produce sneezing. Large Size, 50 cents at Druggists or by mail; Trial Size, 10 cents.

One purpose of our Company is to help people who have trouble with their mechanical devices. A general repair shop ours is, where we have the necessary equipments to execute the work we do with the highest accuracy. At your home, business place or work shop now there are probably some mechanical contrivances that are badly in need of overhauling—probably you are having trouble with your machinery which you can not remedy yourself. Now this is the piece of machinery that is costing you money and will until you have it properly fixed. We will have a representative call and inspect your machinery upon request. Such inspections are mutually beneficial. A postal card request will do.

THE FIRST ADVERTISER.

PROBABLY several hundred million dollars are being spent each year in this country upon advertising. Yet the advertising industry is in its infancy, and the men of trade and commerce are just beginning to wake up to the truth that the possibilities of advertising are the greatest factor in modern business.

The first advertiser was the man who sought out the place where the most people passed and hung out a sign over his establishment. And the last advertiser will be able to do no more. The change has come in the nature of the place where the most people pass and in the character of the sign. The modern means of locomotion and the printing press have made the crowd that passes a particular door in a particular street of comparatively small importance. For the merchant, or the enterprising manufacturer who is merchant also, can find a far vaster crowd to pass before and gaze at his sign. And if he know-how to word that sign he will have his hands full taking care of those who want his goods.

The wise seller of today asks himself two questions: Where will my sign meet the eyes of the people of the kind I wish to meet? What sort of a sign will attract most eyes?—Saturday Evening Post.
